Perspective Drawing

For this drawing I started out by drawing a square in the middle of the paper. After that I used a ruler and drew straight lines coming out from the corners of the square to achieve the 3D look of a hallway.

For this portrait I referenced a photo and used drawing pencils and blending sticks to illustrate the shadows in the photo.

For this piece I used pens to free hand this mandala. I used a bigger size pen as I got more towards the outside to give it a growing affect.

For this piece I used a reference photo I took of myself and a motion blur photo for the background. I used pencil to sketch out my design and finished it with acrylic paint.
